Over a century ago, wood blinds were the only option for blinds. Then, in the 40's metal horizontal blinds and roller shades became popular. Now, there are so many blind & shade options that it can be confusing. Some blinds have vanes or slats to rotate for the desired amount of light and privacy in your home. Others may be operated remotely. There are many brands of blinds and shades on the market. Hunter Douglas offers over 15 different products. Each one has many fabrics, sizes, features, lift systems, and benefits. Consumers can purchase blinds and shades from locally-owned stores, big-box stores, and internet sources.

Since there are so many types of products, it is important to work with a local window treatment company who is knowledgeable about the many options. There are many varied shapes and sizes of windows in addition to trim depths, openers, and lock systems. Good quality window treatments are an investment for your home.

Selecting the best type of blinds and shades for your needs and wants is very important.

Professional measuring and installation are two benefits of purchasing your window treatments locally. Another important benefit of buying local is that you have someone to contact if you ever need repairs.

Energy

It's no exaggeration. As much as 50% of a home's heating and cooling energy escapes through the windows which is a significant waste of money and valuable energy resources. Selecting the right window treatments can reduce energy consumption and save you money.

Hunter Douglas has a patented honeycomb-within-a-honeycomb constructed blind called Duette Architella (left) which reduces energy loss significantly.

Design

With so many fabrics and styles of blinds and shades it is important to have help selecting the best product to enhance your home's windows. Depending on the style of your home, you will want to choose a product that coordinates with your furnishings and your decorating tastes. For example, wood blinds with tapes would be much more suited to a historical home than vertical blinds.

Sometimes consumers forget the exterior of their home. Having blinds and shades of different types and colors can ruin the look of the exterior's appearance.

great not to have cords on your blinds. Just remember that you want to be able to reach the blind to operate it. If you can't reach it, consider motorized blinds with a remote control.
